WANTED—A SENATOR

FROM THE PEACE RIVER

Elsewhere in this issue of the Tribune is printed a news item from the Victoria Daily Times, in which J. G. Turgeon, M.P., has been appointed to fill the British Columbia vacancy in the Canadian Senate.

The Tribune agrees with Mr. Turgeon. The next Senator appointed from British Columbia should be the resident of the northern part of the province and we are glad to hear that Mr. Perry would make a good Senator.

The next Senator appointed from Alberta should be the resident of the Peace River country. The just claim of the Peace River country in this connection should be recognized.

—Ottawa should study a little geography. The Athabasca River is not the northern boundary of Alberta. The cities of Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge are in Alberta but they do not comprise the whole of Alberta, although the politicians seem to think they do.

The intent of the British North America Act is that each part of Canada shall be equally represented in the Senate. This is expressly provided for in the case of the province of Quebec.

There are men and women in the Peace River country who can read and write, who are British subjects, who are thirty years of age, who have the necessary property qualifications to be in the Senate of Canada.

This country deserves a little recognition from Ottawa.

The Peace River country is almost ignored over the ease with which it year after year wins world and Canadian grain championships and now looks in vain for its writers who can give its kings and princes a real contest.

Even this year, when drought laid almost half a continent prostrate, the farmers of the Peace River country were, as usual, bringing in the well-timed sheaves.

The Peace River country is truly favored by nature but has failed to find any favor in the eyes of Edmonton or Ottawa. Evidence is with us, but unfortunately it isn't Providence that makes the appointments to the Senate of Canada.

Since those days when that grand old warrior, the late Honorable Frank Oliver, swung his mighty battle axe at Ottawa, the Peace River has been forgotten or, worse, fed with idle promises.

An area of half Alberta, larger than the settled portions of Manitoba, larger than Old Ontario or the older sections of Quebec and Ontario, the Maritimes—richer in resources than any similar area in Canada—where development is rapidly going on and population increasing—yet with problems affecting the welfare of the whole of the Dominion and crying out for solution and for twenty-five years the Peace River country has had no voice in the councils of the federal government either by a member in the House of Commons supporting the government of the day or by a representative in the Senate.

Surely the claim of the Peace River country for simple justice outweighs all niceties as to whether the next senatorship should go to Edmonton or to Calgary or to this or that racial or religious group.

CLIVE PLANTA, M.L.A., AND THE PEACE RIVER COUNTRY

When the Associated Boards of Trade of Peace River decided to send an exhibit to the Vancouver Golden Jubilee celebration they had but one objective to draw attention to the resources and possibilities of the Peace River and by so doing create an interest in this north country which would help in getting proper transportation to the coast.

According to The Northern Argonaut, printed in Stewart, B.C., Clive M. Planta, M.L.A., for the constituency of Peace River in the British Columbia legislature, is not doing his duty in this respect. The Argonaut has the following editorial under date of November 12:

"Peace River and the Chinaman"

"Mr. Clive Planta, M.L.A. for the Peace River in the provincial legislature, has made the speech of his political career, we are told, on the subject of Oriental penetration into the fruit and vegetable industry of the Fraser Valley."

"Not long before that Mr. Planta was writing and speaking about the fishing industry on the Pacific Coast. We hold no brief for the sons of the Far East against whom Mr. Planta is raising an agitation and we admit that the fishing industry of B. C. is one of intense interest and deserving of study. But we would respectfully suggest to Mr. Planta that the Oriental problem is not bothering his constituents unduly and the fishing industry is not of momentous importance in their long list of daily cares."

We should like to see Mr. Planta's able oratorical capabilities turned to account in the presentation of some of the very great problems that confront the northern part of British Columbia in its struggle for recognition and development.

For instance, his help in getting access to the people of British Columbia the part the airplane can and will play in the future of this great north-land would be appreciated.

It would help some if it would talk of the resources of the country that elected him and state in the broadest of British Columbians a desire to see those resources developed so that we might all be more prosperous.

Let southern British Columbia members speak for their own constituencies. Judging from the appropriations they get, they are not in need of much assistance. Northern members do well to fight for the north.

POINT WELL TAKEN

In the last issue of The Tribune "Creative McNaughton" is the editor for using the term, "nationalization of wealth." He suggests "Nationalization of Medical Service" is more appropriate.

Mr. McNaughton's point is well taken and the writer stands corrected.

We are pleased to know that Mr. McNaughton took the trouble to read the editorial and venture to say that he is in agreement with The Tribune that medical service should be nationalized as far as possible in Canada.

FRANCE BREAKS STRANGLEHOLD ON BANK OF FRANCE

The Popular Front government of France has captured the Bank of France, which acting as a state writer, may yet prove to be of as great significance to the French people as the capture of the Bastille in 1789.

It is said that 200 families, by ruling the Bank of France, virtually controlled France.

This powerful group was the inviolable government and made and made governments for the last 130 years. Not only did this group control the finances of the country but it had controlling interest in the majority of the basic industries.

The control of France by this group for so many years no doubt accounts for the violent uprisings which have resulted from one generation to the next of the masses of the French people.

The Bank of France now becomes a state institution, absolutely under the control of the government. This should not be taken as a victory. The bank is to be run "wide open." On the contrary, every precaution has been taken to keep it on a sound, sane basis.

CONDITIONS MAKE STRANGE BEDFELLOWS

According to press reports, The Toronto Globe has changed ownership. Not only that, but a later dispatch says that the same ownership has purchased the Mail and Empire, and other morning paper, and the two will in future be issued under the heading of The Globe and Mail.

This is just another instance where conditions make strange bedfellows.

Then all the old-time readers coming from Ontario will remember how these two papers—the Globe, founded by George Lawson, and the Mail and Empire, and the mouthpiece of the Conservative party—used to battle over the rights of the supporters of the two old line parties. Now all is changed. The Globe and the Mail—once the lamb and the lion and the lion and the lamb—are now together. For then the war is over, Armistice is signed.

I have been wondering how my old friend, Joe Moore of Bear Lake, will take the change. I've not type on The Globe for several years, and I've only taken his old paper notwithstanding that he did not always agree with his political stance.

DAD'S NOTIONS

By E. S. Stanley

Spring, summer, autumn with their times for seeding, tending and harvesting—we it is with life. But how many come to the autumn of their lives with lessons still unlearned which recur in seasons to come!

Readers' opportunity wait on us at the start with high hopes and a seedling. And summer sowing cannot produce as does timely planting. And whatever we sow—seed with only a good grain—the shell we also reap.

The Tribune told of a farmer who made $1000 extra from one field as the result of using a good seed. It is with us, the grade and yield of our crop of life usefulness is largely the result of the kind of seed we sow in youth.

We have seen recent strips through fields, hogbacking acrossness of the one who did the drilling. I myself reserved a place last spring for late planting of potatoes, but by neglect it remained unused. Unwisely with a potato and a garden, I was a blunder in an otherwise fair garden.

Remember, many of us elders view life's field marked by seasons—not opportunist and wasted time, but here is a shining fact: A second sowing never remains late; they are sown with rain, seed, and seedling, and the seedling is not of momentous importance in their long list of daily cares.

We should like to see Mr. Planta's able oratorical capabilities turned to account in the presentation of some of the very great problems that confront the northern part of British Columbia in its struggle for recognition and development.

For instance, his help in getting

An appropriate gift in an appropriate setting was the gift of a handsome carved wooden candlestick presented the Hon. Betty Baden-Powell to the Hon. Mrs. Gervase Clay at a camp fire attended by some 400 Scout leaders at Gilwell Park, near London, England, the Epping Forest Scout Training centre. The candlesticks were the work of Don Potter, the famous Scout wood carver.

A Walking Camp Dairy

The Kensington P.E.I. Scout Troop took no shelter on their daily milk delivery at camp last summer. Through the kind eye of a friend they borrowed a cow, drove it twelve miles to the camp site, pastured it, and had fresh milk "on tap" daily. Following camp, they returned the cow, and assured everyone that by practicing the sixth Scout Law of "kindness to animals" they had increased the "dairy's" daily output.

The great work gathering of Boy Scouts to be held next summer in Holland will be divided into five sub-camps in each of which every country taking part in the jamboree will be represented.

Eat Fish for Health

Swift once wrote: "fish should swim first. If it should swim in the sea (do you mind me?), then it should swim in butter, and at last, it should swim in good claret." Dispense with the claret, for this would not be in keeping with the effort to help the housewives of Canada stretch their food dollar to the limit.

From an economic, as well as from a health standpoint, it is desirable that fish should have an important place on bills of fare. It cannot be too strongly emphasized that for working people of all classes, those who work with their hands, fish is an economical source of energy necessary to enable them to carry on their work; and that for children and young people it furnishes the very materials that are needed to enable them to grow healthy and strong.

Fish, as everyone knows, is one of the important protein foods. It makes a pleasing variation of the daily diet and should be included at least twice a week in the home menu. There is a wide variety to choose from: fresh or frozen, filleted, boneless, dried, canned, pickled, cured and smoked.

Fish are very easy to digest—a fact of particular importance in these days when so many people are of sedentary habits.

Large fish are, as a rule, better when steamed or boiled, medium sized ones should be baked, or split open and broiled, and small ones should be fried. Whitefish, trout, mackerel, and small cod should be split down the back and broiled whole. Properly prepared, cut off the head and tail.

Hallibut and salmon should be cut into thick slices and turned often while broiling.

To clean fish: wipe with a cloth wet in salt water and dry on a fish towel. Season: oily fish need only salt and pepper, but dry meaty fish should be spread with oil before broiling. Use a double wire broiler reamed well with salt pork and the thickest edge of fish next to the middle of broiler and turn often. With split fish, turn the fish side first and then turn.

The fire should be hot and clear. The time of cooking will depend on the thickness of fish. When ready to serve, loosen the fish from broiler on each side. Open broiler, slide fish on platter, fish side up. Spread with butter, salt and pepper. Garnish with butter cream and a border of potato balls. There are any number of sauces to be served, too: scalloped fish, creamed, also baked fish.

Start today planning to serve fish in your weekly menu. Here is a nice recipe for halibut steaks, Spanish style. It is very timely, don't you think? Many Spanish mothers would like to go back to the quiet peaceful days before the revolution and prepare such a dish for their family.

Choose a steak two inches thick and weighing from two to four pounds, according to the size of your family. Sprinkle salt on both sides and let stand for one-half an hour, then drain and pat dry with absorbent paper. Put into a pan of suitable size one-half of a cup of bacon fat, the juice of a large lemon the Spanish add a cup of non-alcoholic sherry, but that was in the good old days, and many Canadian mothers like it much better without. Let all heat together, then lay in the

A Tribute To the late Mrs. P. U. Clubine

By Mrs. W. J. Thomson.

There are hermit souls that live withdrawn in the peace of their self contentment. There are souls like stars that dwell apart in a religious firmament.

There are pioneer souls that blaze their paths Where highways never ran— But let me live in a house by the side of the road And be a friend to man.

Let me live in a house by the side of the road, Where the race of men go by— The men who are good, and the men who are bad, I would not sit in the seclusion's seat Or hurt the cynic's ban— Let me live in a house by the side of the road And be a friend to man.

Had the poet known her personally, he could not have written words more appropriate to express the life of the late Mrs. Clubine.

Coming as a bride in 1914, over the Edmonton Trail, she was truly a real pioneer and pioneer of the Peace River country, and her home was always open to all passers-by who happened along the trail.

Her husband, Edgar, was a pioneer, but when she came to this country with her parents to Canada, where they settled near Hargreaves, Ontario. Here she spent her childhood days, losing her father very suddenly, who was still very young.

In her early teens she was left motherless, with a large family to care for. In true sister fashion she took charge of the home and raised the younger children.

When they were old enough to care for themselves she undertook to send them to school, where they were well educated and had been deprived owing to home duties. By attending night classes she continued her academic studies at Margaret Eaton School in Toronto, at the same time mastering the art of bookbinding.

It was in July, 1914, that she and Mr. Clubine first began to build their home in their present form. Though their quarters were small, yet to one ever asked for shelter but it was given. No one ever happened to call near meal-time but an extra place was set at the table for him, and as Edgar loved said in one of his poems:

They'd pull the table out!

Pioneers as well as new comers were never in the country long before they had heard about the genial and warm hearted Mrs. Clubine.

Rich or poor, cold or warm, no difference at all was shown to anyone. Her smile was like her warm handshake, cheerful smile and generous hospitality.

Every child who had once visited there knew where to look for the comfort of the kitchen cupboard, and the candy dish on the table, and the mother who was so kind and so generous.

Always thoughtful for the comfort of others, especially those who were new, she was ever ready to help and to help others in any way she could.

And when the time came, she died as she had lived, still serving, so typical of her noble, useful life. We have known her to be love, her, and to have known her friendship will be a never-to-be-forgotten treasure.

She did not act in the seclusion's seat, Or hurt the cynic's ban, But she lived in her house by the side of the road And was a friend to man.
